NEW YORK, THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1890.

IN FLACK'S SEAT.

In Charge of the Office, but No Sheriff Appointed Yet.

Gov. Hill Hourly Expected to Name the Deposed Official's Successor.

Under-Sheriff John B. Sexton is to-day the executive law officer of the County of New York. Sheriff James A. Flack early last evening etermined to resign under pressure of the charges preferred by Attorney-General Tabor, and forwarded his resignation to Gov. Hill by special messenger.

The Governor received the resignation is 10,30 o'clock P. M., and promptly accepted Mr. McDonald, the messenger, returned to the Sheriff's office with it this morning, and UndertSheriff Sexton immediately sumed control.

Sheriff Flack's action was predicted by THE EVENING WORLD of Tuesday last, and was not unlooked for by the politicians. In fact, the only comment made in political circles regarding it related to the probable successor to be appointed by Gov. Hill.

This step was taken by the Sheriff under the advice of his counsel, who appreciated that there was little hope of a successful defense of charges based simply on a certificate of conviction for conspiracy.

Flack's friends opposed his resignation, believing that the verdict of the jury in his case will be set aside and that he would not be called upon to suffer imprisonment for the crime of which the jury declared him spullty.

suits, Ex-Judge Russell, who defended the Flack conspirators, suggested that there was another and more cogest reason for the resignation than the lack of a defense to resignation than the lack of a delease the charges.

The Sheriff, he said, has been the object of persistent attack on the part of press and people, and so long as he retained his official position he would remain a shining mark and a target for continued attack.

If he resigned and retired into private life there would be less excuse for the continuance of the attacks, he said, and Mr. Flack was only to glad to take that course if it would relieve him only in a slight measure from them.

would relieve him only in a slight measure from them.

The Sheriff's letter of resignation evidences the fact that he was actuated by this desire to escape the fusiliade of adverse public criticism. for in it he says. "I have been most inhumanly and cruelly persecuted by sensational and partisan newspapers."

Another story of the causes leading to the resignation is to the effect that pressure was brought to bear by Tammany Hall to get Flack to tender his resignation, but that he would not agree to it until he was assured that it would be accepted and the charges before the Governor would not be brought to triel.

Under-Sherisf Sexton will not as Sherisf until Gov. Hill appoints a successor to Flack for the interim to Jan. 1, 1891.

His does not care to be that successor, for by accepting the appointment he renders himself ineligible for the office for three years, and it is understood that Mr. Sexton desires to be the next Tammany candidate for a full term.

years, and it is understood that Mr. Sexton desires to be the next Tammany candidate for a full term.

It is this very fact that the appointes will be rendered incligible for the office after a service of but nire months that preverts there being many earnest candidates for the appointment, and the same argument will render the list of candidates to fill the vacancy at the next election asmall one.

The profits of the office for the nine months should be about $25,000, and this may induce to an acceptance of the appointment.

Besides John B. Sexton, Edgar I., Ridgway, Richard M. Lenry and Edward Kearney, who have been mentioned among Tammany men as possible appointees, several County Democrats have been named, among them ex-Commissioner of Public Works D. Lowber Smith, President Charles W. Dayton, of the Harlem Democratic Club, and ex-Senators Michael C. Murphy and James Daly.

Gov. Hill has been frequently accused by see Daly, ov. Hill has been frequently accused by County Democracy of showing toe great artisity for Tammany in making ap-timents in this city, and it is shought that, in Yiaw of the unpleasant position in which the Wigwam has been placed by the Fassett Committee's investigation and the Grand Jury's presentment, he may conclude so but the office in the hands of the County on the office in the hands of the County Democracy.

Such action, it is suggested, would be a clever notitical more which would redound to the Governor's benefit and at the same time benefit. Tammany itall by rendering inclinible a strong opposition candidate for the Shrievalty at the next election.

The Tammanyites who cannot see how the benefit, to their organization will accrue through such an appointment are the deputy sheriffs, who would have to vacate the office and give up their fat pickings of extra compensation, and they were very much disturbed to-day by the idea that the Governor might make up his mind to appoint other than a Tammany Hall man to succeed Sheriff Flack.

Ex-Sheriff Flack was at the office this morning, clearing up the desk and attending to his private matters. He refused to be interviewed, and seemed satisfied that he had add all that he desired in explanation of his action in his letter of resignation.

Commissioner of Public Works Gilroy would only say by way of comment that, in his opinion. Mr. Flack had done a wise shing in resigning.

Assistant District-Attorney Grosse appeared for the people.

Edward M. Steele, janitor of the Fourteenth Street Theatre, was the first witness.

"When I opened the gallery door! walked down the line of people and saw Hyde and Turnbull at the end," said he.

I saw Turnbull was not selling, so I said Hello, Bob. how is business?

"Well, not doing much, he replied.

"Why, it's a crowled house, I said, and then went back into the theatre.

"I was there only a minute, and then came out and stood by one of the pillars, when the two men rushed up to me.

"Hyde was in front of Turnbull, who had his arm around Hyde. The latter grasped a revolver in his right hand.

"For God's sake, don't shoot, I cried. Then Hyde fired."

Lawyer Howe had one of his assistants, young Allen, in the court, and he went through a dramatio representation of the tragic occurrence. He elicited a very important point. Steele declared that the nistoil was discharged while in Hyde's right hand, and while Hyde was in Turnbull's arms.

Lawyer Atkinson's Skull Fractured by Safe-Mover Palmer.

An Eye-Witness's Story of the Affray-Palmer's Plea Self-Defense,

Phoenix Palmer, foreman of the men em-ployed by the Mosler Safe Company to move safes from one place to another, was at-raigned before Justice O'Reilly in the Yorkville Court this morning, charged with killng John Atkinson, a lawyer, who lived at Eighty-seventh street and Tenth avenue. turing a row about a safe, which Palmer was endeavoring to remove forcibly from an office under the Aristan apartment house, at Fiftyfifth street and Broadway, about 6 o'clock last eyening.

The office was rented by a lawyer named J. B. Bernard, who lives at 141 West Fif-teenth street, in conjunction with one James Kaliske, last July, and they purchased the safe together on the instalment planagreeing to pay $10 a month each for it. Three payments were made. Recently Kalishe moved and notified the Mosier Company that he would not pay any more on the safe. Bernard did not want it, either, so the Company sent a truck and men twice to bring it back to their place. Both times Bernard was out, but Palmer found him in when he called for the safe Bernard and Atkinson were drawing up-partnership papers. Palmer asked for the safe, and Bernard said:

"I am too busy to clean it out now. Come

"I am too busy to clean it out now. Come again."

Falmer grew angry and insisted on taking the safe then. Skids were rigged, and the safe was partly out of the door when Atkinson, who was a big man, angered by some remarks which Palmer made, declared:

"Well, now. you can't have the safe."
Grenville E. Martyn, a stenographer and medical student, who lives at 407 West Fifty-seventh aircet, was an eye-wriness of what followed, and stated the particulars to an Eventua Wonlin reporter this morning. He said:
